

To Whom It May Concern:

I am very disappointed. I ordered a Natural Gas Civic back in May of 2008 and finally received it the third week of December. I spent months convincing my wife that this would be a great way to save money on fuel costs, which would outweigh the inconvenience of having to fill-up more frequently and with only a few options around the valley. Fast forward a few weeks and I learn that Natural Gas prices are going way up and will follow gas prices from now on...are you kidding me!!!! Put yourself in my position, how would you handle that news? The inconvenience and limitations ARE NOT WORTH the hassle if I can't save money. You must overturn the decision that was made to raise prices. Ninety-Nine percent of the folks that drive NGV cars are Utahns that use Questar gas at home and at work, we are paying our dues. Your actions will only discourage folks from using more ingenuitive alternatives to petroleum.

Please consider your actions carefully.

Thank you,

Tyson Smith
