Some of the reasons for my switch to CNG is that I believe it helps America get away from foreign oil dependence, and I do know that it also helps our environment, because it burn cleaner and puts off far less emissions out the tail pipe.

The low cost of CNG is a Big incentive for many people to switch to this renewable source of energy, and as Gasoline prices climb in the future as we all know they will, more and more people will be looking for a way to save them selfs money.

I feel that my efforts to both get away from Big oil company s rip offs at the pump and my desire to help with a cleaner environment is at risk.

1. Lets Set an example to the rest of America, low fuel costs to give people incentive to change to an alternative fuel fuel.
2. Low fuel costs will promote change to cleaner burning cars, trucks and other fuel burning devices.
3. Low fuel costs promote our economy to grow, in many different ways first it helps people to commute to and from work.
 Second it gives car company's incentive to build and promote new cleaner burning cars, which in turn gives consumers choices and incentive to buy new cars.
 Third. If I save money at the pump this allows me to spend money on other things Food, clothing, Lights, in other words, allows me to possibly give my money to other things Rather then the oil company s
4. Low CNG prices will help insure Utah's economy to grow and flourish through new industry in the field of CNG, it will also give us cleaner air promote Jobs.

Other then giving Queststar more money to line there pockets why raise the cost of CNG?
