I'm more than annoyed that in today's technically advanced world, the process of making a simple phone call has become more tedious time consuming. I understand that Utah is a growing state, and more numbers are needed.

Here's my suggestion. Give Utah County its own area code. SL Valley its own area code, and Davis county its own area code. California has over 30 area codes. It seems like a simple solution, or are we running out of area codes too?

Why is it that government seems to complicate everything it touches?
