Dear Mr. Harvey

I understand that you are a representative on the Public Service Commission. I would respectfully request that you exercise what ever influence you have with the commission to convince them that their decision to implement the overlay method of a new area code is opposed by the majority of Utah's residents. This decision is bad for the public and appears to benefit the telephone companies and is pushed by them. This decision was made without broad input from the public and would be reversed if the public were given a full voice such as a ballet referendum. Please do whatever you can to let this be a decision that is best for the majority and not for the powerful few.

Thank you,
Sincerely, Gordon Brown
